Getting Started Tracing Your Family Roots: Brian Runyan – Tuesday, September 18, 2018
	FREE CLASS - This class starts your family tree research with a begin at the beginning strategy. Topics will include collecting information from the family, family group sheets, pedigree charts, genealogy database programs, and best research practices.
Local Histories and Published Resources: Marcia Grubb – Tuesday, September 25, 2018
	Published resources such as local or county histories as well as family histories are now available in printed and digital electronic formats. This class will explain the what, when, where and how to of published resources updating Larry Dean's popular and extensive 2006 class outline. Our CCGS Library shelves are such a great starting point - we have books!
Finding the Women in Your Family Tree: Barbara Schrag – Tuesday, October 2, 2018
	Where are the women in your family tree? Half of your ancestry comes from women, yet we tend to focus our genealogical searches on men. This class will focus on the importance of including all the women in your search as well as the where and how to find them.
Writing Your Own Obituary: Lela Miller – Tuesday, October 9, 2018
Find-A-Grave Online Research Tips: Alice Allen - Tuesday, October 9, 2018
		How reliable are obituary records? First Lela offers specific obituary writing guidelines and how to ensure factual obituary information is published correctly. Next Alice brings Find-A-Grave online research, access tips and how to connect with Find A Grave information providers.
Genealogy and the Law: Dale Deatherage – Tuesday, October 16, 2018
	Your genealogical research has located an ancestor with fieri facias or maybe guardians in socage . What are these words? Legal terms and the law not only determined your ancestor's decisions and actions but also where you may locate them through records in buying and selling land, writing wills or paying taxes.
Researching Missouri Records: Brian Runyan - Tuesday, October 30, 2018
	Look at a USA map, Missouri is right there in the middle. It is truly a crossroads state. Missouri has an early settlement history. French Canadians arrived via river travel between 1764 and 1803 when Missouri became a part of Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase. With statehood in 1821, more settlers seeking land arrived from the east.
