Getting to know . . . Kara Lynn (Kinnick) Rankin

Picking cotton, raising a garden to survive, and sewing my own clothes was normal for me as I grew up in a loving family of seven siblings in the "dust-bowl" region. My youth saw the end of WWII, electricity and phone service arriving in our area, and indoor plumbing installed in our three-bedroom house. The rural one-room school allowed great friendships to develop, but it lacked a library to encourage broader knowledge.

Acceptance into the newly formed Peace Corps allowed me to travel and learn a new language. The skills learned in my growing-up years proved valuable while working with 4-H Clubs in Brazil from July '63 to July '65. This was the height of the Vietnam War, which brought on campus unrest. To remain in college, young men had to maintain grades or be drafted. After their highly emotional experience, the men who served returned home different people; the same can be said for the persons who served in the Peace Corps. I also spent a couple of years on the Peace Corps staff in Washington, DC, and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Less than a year after I returned to the university, a former instructor, Ed Rankin, and I renewed our acquaintance. We married in a local church where he was the assistant rector; he was also the chaplain to Oklahoma State University. In 1973 we moved to Portland, where Ed had a downtown church and I worked at the Social Security Administration (SSA) office two blocks away. We moved to Vancouver in 1981, where Ed served at St. Luke's Episcopal Church and I worked at the local SSA office. Processing retirement, Medicare, disability, and survivor's claims was the main thrust of my work with SSA. During the five years before retirement, I facilitated union-management negotiations.

Our son, David, was born in 1975. Vancouver Public Schools' Challenge and Running Start programs served him well. After graduating from Reed College in Portland, David attended law school in New York City. He practices law in the Big Apple.

The career, motherhood, and clergy supporting-spouse years went by quickly. I retired in December 1999. Ed and I enjoy traveling; we've driven across the U.S. and back, visited Portugal, Paris, Rome, Costa Rica, Mexico, and Canada, as well as many areas in the U.S. I am a member of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and Athenaeum.

A few years after retiring, I joined CCGS so I could learn how to do genealogy without having to redo everything already done. Even though I schedule the librarians, I am a novice at genealogy. It is a delight to be involved with such dedicated and knowledgeable people.

Volunteers were: Dolly Merrick and Flo Martocello, who took work home to do; Yvonne Muchmore and Lillian Fullerton copied vitals for indexing; Larry Dean and Lillian Fullerton are indexing vitals at home; Gaydena Thompson, Darla Brock, and Sherry Warren worked on the periodical project. Thank you Darla for your Spiced Pumpkin Bread recipe for the bread you brought to the seminar. Thank you, DeAnn, for keeping us on task.

VOLUNTEER DAY TO BEGIN

Steven Cornick, CCGS President

Starting Monday, January 17, 2011, the third Monday of the month will be VOLUNTEER DAY at the Clark County Genealogical Society.

In addition to the regular cut and paste activities, the day will be open for pretty much any of the myriad of tasks that need to be done, from accessing new donations, to "shelf reading," to preparing education program material, or just general clean up. We welcome any member who wants to pitch in and make the CCGS experience better than ever.

Many hands helping will make some tasks very easy. Thank you for volunteering.

Getting to know. . . . BILL WHALLEY

When my stepfather died in 1995, I thought, "I don't know much about his family." Then I thought, "I don't know much about my father's family either." He had died in 1948 when I was 4. My grandparents and uncle were dead and I had lost track of my cousins. My mother did not know much about his family; theirs was a wartime marriage and my father spent most of it overseas building oil refineries and pipelines.

When I did find one cousin, she gave me a copy of a Whalley family tree, a large sheet prepared by a family member in 1955. He had typed it on a wide carriage typewriter. It outlined the Whalleys back to early 18th century England and showed that I had family in Australia and England as well as a bunch of cousins in the US. Wow!

But, of course, there were no sources for the information, and it was 40 years out of date. I got a copy of the US telephone white pages on CD-ROM and started matching up names and writing letters. I was able to contact many of the people on the chart who were still living, and bring the chart up-to-date. Along the way I found out some fascinating things about my family and about the Yukon gold rush, Russian Alaska, fellmongering in Australia, the Boer war connection to the International Boy Scouts, modern British TV personalities, and more. Ask me for details.

And my stepfather? Well, I made some progress on his family, but there are still lots of questions. It's a work in progress.

I knew about CCGS back in 1995, but I didn't see much point in joining. I was working at the paper mill in Camas, and the meetings, seminars, and classes that I thought would be the reasons to join were often held at times I could not come. And I didn't have roots in Clark County anyway. I finally joined CCGS after I retired, and I found out I was wrong. The main benefit is contact with lots of people who are knowledgeable and enthusiastic about genealogy. I learn so much from them.

I volunteered as a librarian and that led to knowing more about CCGS and finding out where I might be able to help. My present jobs at CCGS are Directory Editor, Volunteer Librarian, Legacy Users Group, and the Technology Team. It's fun and getting involved is easy. Just ask where you can help!

We need YOUR story!

Jane Germann

Have you have a chance to read the articles in the last Trail Breakers? We are looking for new stories for the issue that will come out in June 2011. Do you have some interesting family stories you can include? Richard Engstrom's story about the exorcism of a ghost in his family was well written and well documented.

If you need help, take Lethene's writing class in January or contact Jane Germann at germann@wa-net.com.

We'd love to see your story. You can check out the last issue of the Trail Breakers at <http://www.rootsweb.ancestry.com/~waccgs/p7591.htm>

Interesting Epitaths

Anna Hopewell's grave in Enosburg Falls, Vermont:

*Here lies the body of our Anna,
Done to death by a banana.
It wasn't the fruit that laid her low,
But the skin of the thing that made her go.*

On a grave from the 1880s in Nantucket, Massachusetts:

*Under the sod and under the trees,
Lies the body of Jonathan Pease.
He is not here, there's only the pod.
Pease shelled out and went to God.*

A QUERY FROM GERMANY

CCGS member Rosaly Divens has relayed a query from a Mr. F. Koester of Berlin, Germany, who advertised last January in the "Woodland Community Forum" for help locating information about his granduncle Frank M. Koester. After this uncle came to the U.S. in 1903, he lost contact with his family but, using the Internet, they have located his descendants and obtained information about him up until 1939. Two people responded to the ad before Rosaly e-mailed an offer to help. With his reply, Mr. Koester sent her a copy of his uncle's death certificate and some photographs.

According to the death certificate: Frank Martin Koester, a resident of Woodland, died of broncho-pneumonia in Clark County Hospital in Vancouver on 17 February 1967 at the age of 84 and was buried in Frank Abel Cemetery on 20 February 1967; he was a retired foundry worker who lived on a farm with postal address Rt. 1 Box 419, Woodland; he was born 11/10/1883 in Germany and remained a German citizen. The death certificate also says that Frank M. Koester never married, but one of the photos is supposedly of him with his wife and child, and his family has located descendants.

If you can help with information about the missing years from 1939 to 1967, please contact Rosaly Divens by email at: wsurose at gmail.com

Thank you, thank you, thank you!
